

Psychoanalysis and The Public Sphere: The Politics of Identity Titles of papers

Philip Stokoe, 'Unconscious beliefs and the vulnerability of the conscious mind'

Eli Zaretsky, 'Michael Balint, Trumpism and Brexit'

Susie Orbach, 'Corporeality, Classification and Human Development'

Lauren Langman, 'Psychodynamics and the Public Spheres: Class, Identity and Hegemony'

David Pilgrim, 'Identity Politics: Where did it all go wrong?'

Sally Sales, 'Identity through injury: Class in the psychoanalytic clinic'

Ian Parker, 'Stalinist realism and open communism in relation to class in psychoanalysis'

David Bell, 'The double-edged sword of Identity Politics: from emancipation to tyranny'

Lene Auestad, 'Identities and definitions: some paradoxes'

Barry Richards, 'Democracy and Nation: reevaluating national identity'

Karl Figlio, 'Toxicity in Masculine Identity'

Narendra Keval, 'The haunting melody of loss in the racist imagination'

Maxine Dennis, 'Backlash'

Jama Adams, 'African American Identity Claims, Diversity, and White Ambivalence'

Sabby Sagall, 'Conflicted Identities in Ukraine and Palestine'

Neal McLaughlin, 'Chomsky versus Fromm on the Israeli Palestinian conflict and Russia's imperial role in the world: how psychoanalytic social character theory can help us move beyond identity politics'

Diana Bass, 'Whose Identity is it Anyway? Dynamics of Power and Control in the Construction of Culture and Identity'